Tips On How To Take Care Of a Plant

Tips On How To Take Care Of a Plant

- o Choose plants based on your light
- o Pick plants that work with your schedule

New to plant parenthood? A busy work schedule, social life, and general forgetfulness can lead to unintentional plant neglect. It's okay. Some plants can handle that kind of lifestyle. A jet-setter like yourself will enjoy the resilience of low-maintenance and drought-tolerant succulents, ZZ plants, or snake plants, all pretty low key, as long as they have enough light (bright and low light respectively). These should keep looking their best when you return from your next trip.

If you've got more time, you can try a few attention-loving air plants, orchids, or ferns. Like a mist for the face, an extra spritz of filtered water daily between waterings keeps humidity levels nice and balanced for these delicate plants.

- o Be mindful when watering
- o Raise humidity levels when needed
- o Always keep temperatures stable
